3 2 2

Tall slender trees outside, timber floorboards, timber clad internal walls and dramatically raked ceilings, exposed beams, structural poles and a backlit modern timber staircase inside, combined with skylights, corner windows and walls of glass, generate a theme of close interface with nature. The split-level layout of this 3 bedroom plus home office pole house allows for most rooms to face north to glorious bushland, which can be accessed from the yard and rear lane for gorgeous walks and the serenade of birds.

Cabinetry and benchtops for the bathroom, ensuite and kitchen continue the wooded theme, and storage has been maximised by adopting internal wall spaces within the home. The design and layout of the kitchen is compelling to
